To calculate Zakat, follow these steps:

1. Read the context carefully.
2. Answer only using information explicitly stated in the context.
3. If the question doesn't mention any topic in the context, reply with "I don't know" based on available data.
4. Never combine topics from the context with topics from the question that aren't in the context.
5. When the context doesn't provide an answer, refer to standard rates and exceptions as mentioned in source 1.
6. Use the standard rate and exceptions as mentioned in source 1 to calculate Zakat.
7. Calculate Zakat using the standard rate and exceptions as mentioned in source 1.
8. If there are any questions related to asset categories, track Zakat history as mentioned in source 4.
9. If the question mentions anything not in the context, use "I don't know" as a response.

what is nisab

The context for "What is Nisab?" includes the following FAQ:

Q1: What is Nisab?
A: Nisab is the minimum threshold of wealth that a Muslim must possess before Zakat becomes obligatory. It is measured based on:

- Gold: 87.48 grams
- Silver: 612.36 grams
- Cash or other assets: The equivalent monetary value of gold or silver in local currency. Wealth below Nisab is not subject to Zakat. Q2: How much Zakat should be paid? A: As per current Nisab thresholds, it is estimated that net wealth of $40,000 would require approximately $500 Zakat. Step 4: Calculate Zakat
- Standard rate: 2.5% of total qualifying wealth
- Exceptions/special cases: Agricultural produce: 5-10% depending on irrigation; livestock: varies based on type and quantity
- Calculation example: Net wealth of $40,000 = $40,000 × 2.5% = $1,000

Step 2: Deduct liabilities
Outstanding loans (personal or business), bills that must be paid immediately, taxes owed but not yet paid

Step 3: Check Nisab
- Nisab is the minimum amount of wealth before Zakat is due
